The LEDs whose numbers are perfect squares will be red after the 20,000th person has walked through the hallway. These LEDs are the only ones that will be toggled an odd number of times (and hence be turned red), because only the perfect squares have an odd number of factors.